Multilanguage Pack 26 5

the lxp fallback solution builds upon the lxps, and installs the windows 10 update (see below) as well as the corresponding lxp update in the background.

therefore, it is recommended that users complete the process in this order: install the windows 10 update from the windows update control panel (or via the windows update api) that includes the wu_allow_download option.

download and install the corresponding lxp_update.msi for the language packs that you wish to enable. this solution is a wup install, and because of this, the wu_allow_download option must be specified in the /q parameter of the install command. without this option, the install will fail and the windows update will not be installed. if you are using a wup install, then it will not be used for other languages. the reason is that the fallback solution cannot run concurrently with an installed windows update. if you need to enable another language pack, you must uninstall the wup install, and then download and install the corresponding lxp. this is a quick and easy way to get you started with device localization using bpm studio. using this package, a localizable app is created that includes the required localization resources for english and spanish. to create the localization resources, bpm studio pro 5.01 is installed along with the localization resources for english and spanish. you can add additional languages by installing the localization resources for those languages. 2)you'll be prompted to choose where to download the update. if you're running sp1 already, you can download and run the update as normal. if you're not running sp1, you'll need to download the update file (sp1_update_vs_2005_en.exe) and run the update from the command line.
